1) Player 1's Character A pays a Power Card and declares an attack.

2) Player 2's Character B pays a Power Card and declares a guard.

3) Character B's attack is 2, and Character A's defense is 3, so Character A will not be discarded. Character A's attack is 2, and Character B's defense is 1, so Character B will be discarded.

4) Player 1's Character A pays another Power Card, and attacks again.

5) Player 2 has no characters in the Control Area, and therefore cannot guard. So the player will take 2 points of damage.

JUVENILE ORION THE CARD GAME

Aquarian Age is an original trading card game created by Broccoli that was first introduced in July of 1999. The unique game system and the illustrations featuring many talented artists in Japan have fascinated card game players of all kinds.

Battle Example

Player 1 has Character A (Mental Strength 2/Attack Power 2/Defense Power 3) in the Control Area with 2 Power Cards.

Player 2 has Character B (Mental Strength 3/Attack Power 2/Defense Power 1) in the Control Area with 3 Power Cards.

Power Card Phase

During this phase, you can place Power Cards under characters in your Control Area or any of your active characters in the Faction Area. You can continue until you end your power phase or you run out of cards in your hand.

However, a character can only have Power Cards up to the number of their Mental Strength. When a character in the Faction Area has the number of Power Cards the same as their Mental Strength, the character will come down to the Control Area at the end of the Power Phase.

You can only control 1 character per faction in one turn. Characters with Mental Strength of 0 will come down automatically at the end of the Power Phase.

Discard Phase

During this phase, if you have more than 7 cards in your hand, you will need to discard cards until you have 7 cards.

6) Player 2 will draw the top card from his Deck and place it faced up in the Damage Area.

7) The card was a Character Card, so the card will move to the Faction Area.

8) Damage was 2, so Player 2 draws another card and places it faced up in the Damage Area.

9) The card was a Break Card, so it will remain in the Damage Area.

Special Attacks

Mental Attacks

A Mental Attack is the ability to attack directly to the Power Card of the opponent's character instead of at the Defense Power. Characters with Mental Attack abilities have their Attack Power written in parenthesis such as (2).

For a character with Mental Attack ability, declaring an attack and declaring to guard is the same as usual. Paying the attack cost of one Power Card and guard cost of one Power Card is also the same.

The damage inflicted by a character with Mental Attack ability is called Mental Damage. When a character receives Mental Damage, it must discard the Power Cards placed on it. The number of Power Cards to discard is the same number as the Mental Damage.

Just as in a normal battle, characters inflict damage onto each other in battles that involve Mental Attack.

If a character does not have enough Power Cards to discard from the Mental Damage, the character is discarded. When the Power Card that is left is 0 or more, the character survives the attack.

When a character receives a Mental Damage and normal damage at the same time, the Damage Determination is done at the same time. If the character cannot endure either one of the damages, the character is discarded. When a player receives Mental Damage and a normal damage at the same time, the player must pay the total amount of damage from both attacks in the Damage Determination.

Please look in our other Aquarian Age releases for the complete rules for other styles!

*Juvenile Chron uses a "United Style" set of rules and therefore, simpler than the other styles of the Aquarian Age trading card game.
